Baby Chart

This written report gives a basic description of the Astrology and Numerology information derived from the birthdate and the full name given at birth.

Both Astrology and Numerology have existed as far back as the earliest written records. No one knows where the knowledge originated but it seems to indicate that there is a pre-birth intelligence that selects the conditions of birth to fulfil certain life goals.

A written report such as this is limited and does not claim to be as thorough as a full consultation. It is hoped that the information presented helps parents accept the totally unique character of each child.

Remember that your child chose you for the love, support, guidance and structure that will help him or her achieve full potential.

Sun in Pisces

The Sun sign is ego, individuality and personality. It is who you are and what talents and abilities you possess. The better you know and feel comfortable with your Sun sign, the happier and more productive you will be. It also represents the abilities that you are determined to master.

The Sun in the chart represents the active, life force of the personality. It is the director of the many other facets of the chart.

Maya's Sun is in Pisces. This indicates that she is very sensitive to her surroundings and to those around her. She needs a lot of quiet time, time by herself and perhaps more sleep than others her age. She also needs emotional security more than most.

A Pisces individual may be unsure of herself, but will do anything to help others. She is quiet, emotionally and psychically sensitive and spiritual. She needs to be encouraged to express her sensitivity through some form of creative expression.

Moon in Capricorn

The Moon is the emotional self, early emotional conditioning, and the child's impression of the mother. It is all the non-verbal conditioning the child absorbs in the first few years of life. This early influence forms an imprint and the child will look for some of the qualities of the Moon sign in any important emotional relationship. The Moon also represents what the child needs for emotional comfort.

Maya has a Moon in Capricorn. This gives her a 'serious' approach to life. She may be cautious and need lots of reassurance and gives the impressions she is more self-sufficient than she actually is. She is very concerned about 'succeeding' and needs to learn that she is loved for herself and not for what she does.

Ascendant in Aquarius

The Ascendant is the personality that we express. It is how others see us, particularly the first impression. It is sometimes referred to as the "mask" but it is really how we take the many diversified parts of our personality and present it to the world. It is the way we approach new experiences.

Maya's Ascendant is in Aquarius. She will express herself stubbornly in a totally unique manner. She is intuitive and should be taught to listen to her own inner voice as her path is an individual one, not governed by tradition or by what others think. She has the ability to see old situations in a brand new way.

Mercury in Aquarius

Mercury represents how we think and communicate. It is our intellectual personality. It is also how we learn.

Maya's Mercury is in Aquarius. This represents a very active mentality that may display flashes of great individuality and originality. She will grasp concepts well and is able to see long term patterns.

Mercury in Aquarius may indicate a rebelliousness or restlessness. There is often a strong intelligence and an ability to concentrate, combined with a need to figure things out independently.

Venus in Pisces

Venus is what you love and what you value. It is how you relate to others. It represents the feminine nature so, very generally speaking, a male will tend to project this and be attracted to these qualities in a female while a female will attempt to project these qualities herself.

Children with Venus in Pisces are very sensitive, intuitive, compassionate and idealistic. They are often attracted to those in pain and need to learn to balance their desire to be of help to others with a healthy recognition of their own needs.

A creative outlet is important for these children as much of what they feel can only be expressed in non-verbal forms.

Mars in Taurus

Mars is your ambition, your drive and what makes you angry. It is what gets you up in the morning and keeps you working toward your goals. It is your physical energy, your passion and your initiative.

Maya's Mars in is Taurus. Her energy is steady and patient, possibly stubborn, and she will work persistently once she has set herself a goal.

Money and possessions are important to her and she may have to be taught how to share.

Jupiter in Cancer

Jupiter is what comes easily and where you make yourself and others feel good. It is where you want to grow and often where you find your opportunities.

With Jupiter in Cancer, Maya is friendly, home-loving and very security conscious. She will be very aware of what makes her feel safe and will insist on having those things around her. If food becomes her security, there may be a weight problem.

Saturn in Gemini

Saturn is the teacher. It is the point on the chart where we have lessons to learn. Saturn represents emotional blocks, structure, fears and restraint. It is the point of insecurity in a young person and may become the source of greatest satisfaction in maturity as the attendant lessons are worked through.

Saturn has been referred to as the 'planet of karma' and is an important point of the chart as it is one of indicators of what the soul is attempting to learn in this lifetime. It is a particularly sensitive spot on a child's chart as it where we start out in life the most vulnerable.

Maya has Saturn in Gemini. She is learning about communication and may have some insecurities about her ability to convey her thoughts or she may have a fear of failure in her early education experiences. Her mind is curious, determined, and very focussed. She loves to study and she loves to learn. Despite her insecurities, she may be drawn to fields where she is able to pass on her accumulated knowledge.

Uranus in Aquarius

Uranus is a generation influence meaning that all children born around this time will have the same influence. It is the area where this age group will find some form of uniqueness and originality.

Maya's Uranus is in Aquarius. This generation will deal with the issues of the individual versus society. They are dramatic, individualistic, futuristic, spiritual and idealistic. They understand abstract ideas and deal well with both the computer age and with mass communication. It is harder for them to deal with people on a one to one basis. Because this generation wants to revolutionize many areas, it is important that they learn to recognize and respect individual rights.

Neptune in Aquarius

Neptune is another generation influence. This one lasts 14 years and represents our intuitive faculties and spiritual growth. It is also our confusion and escapist tendencies.

Maya's Neptune is in Aquarius. This generation is very idealistic and will want to incorporate their ideals into daily life. They also bring knowledge about working with the energy systems of the body to affect healing.

Pluto in Sagittarius

Pluto is still another generation influence. Pluto is the planet that demands change, and brings this change through dramatic action.

Maya's Pluto is in Sagittarius. This indicates courage, curiosity, and a constant desire to learn and grow.

Sagittarius rules expansion, travel, law, sports, religion, and higher education. This generation will see dramatic transformations in all of these areas.

The Reluctant Astrologer

Baby Chart Sample

Pluto is in Sagittarius approximately every 250 years. Each previous time Pluto has been in this sign, there has been the beginning of an important new religion as well as a great deal of religious unrest and persecution. Columbus discovered America during a Pluto in Sagittarius period. Universities were founded and important philosophic theories developed.

Destiny of Six

The Destiny is the main influence derived from a numerology chart. It indicates the main purpose of the child's life. Even though many of the interests may not show up until adult life, you do see some of the characteristics even in a young baby.

The destiny of Six is the destiny of one who wants to be of service in some way. Family ties, the home and emotional relationships are all very important to a person with this destiny number.

This is the peacemaker, the healer, the teacher, the homemaker... the person who wants to bring harmony into each situation. This is the destiny of one who always wants to help.

Part of the lesson to be learned is to offer help willingly but also to choose her areas of service wisely. She may also have to learn to be able to stand back and let others work through their own lessons.

A person with a Six destiny will often choose a career that involves service to others such as education or medicine.

Personality of Eight

The Personality number comes from the date of birth. This is the 'core' personality. The expression of the personality will be affected by the name that is used, but the 'core' personality does not change through the lifetime.

A child with an Eight personality is strong and will enjoy being challenged, even at an early age.

The Eight represents qualities of leadership and the ability to take charge of situations.

The Eight is an ambitious personality both in material terms and in a desire to be in charge. A child with this personality has to learn to use their strengths and ambitions in a positive way and overcome the tendency to be bossy with other children.

Because the Eight represents power and strength, a child born under this influence often demonstrates these attributes at a very young age.

Name

The full name given at birth is like a code for the new baby's life. The name, just like the birthdate, supplies very important and de-codable information about the nature, the needs and the lessons for life.

Inner Motivation of Six

The Inner Motivation represents what the child needs emotionally at a very basic level. She may or may not express this motivation overtly but will try to incorporate this into every situation.

Maya wants to be part of warm, steady emotional relationships. She will put a lot of time and energy into her family, her friends and her home. She has an emotional need to be of service to others.

Outer Expression of Three

The Outer Expression is the child's personality and manner of expression. It is therefore how others perceive her.

When the Outer Expression is Three, she expresses a friendly, creative, optimistic nature. There is a natural charm and even charisma as she is gifted at the art of expression.

Total Personality of Nine

The Total Personality number represents the complete personality and shows how the child will combine her Inner and Outer personality.

The Total Personality of Nine indicates a child who is sensitive, eager to learn and explore her world. Nine is one of the 'mystic' numbers and this child may seek spiritual knowledge to help her explain what she perceives and senses. She seems older and wiser than her age.

Karma

Karma is what we are trying to learn in this lifetime. It is the area where we are weak and where we therefore encounter constant lessons in order to become strong. Most of the difficult situations that we encounter will have to do in some way with the Karma lessons. These influences will also lead us to our most interesting experiences.

By being aware of the Karma numbers, parents can help the child start to learn what has to be learned. The parent will also have a more tolerant attitude toward the child's apparent weaknesses. Every child is different...different strengths, different weaknesses, a different path to follow and different lessons to learn. We have a very strong drive to learn our karma lessons and respond in a very positive manner to anyone who can offer help in these areas.

If we know what it is we are trying to learn, and are encouraged in a positive manner, we derive the most benefit from the experiences and lessons that we encounter.

The Karma number or number(s) are the numbers missing in the full name given to the child at birth. Most people have one or two numbers missing.

Karma of Six

The Six Karma refers to the need to develop an appreciation for family and emotional ties, to love unconditionally and to be of service to others.

Maya will attract situations that expose her to warm, loving, uncritical relationships that teach her the value of positive emotional connections. She will also attract relationships that may be emotionally cold or critical. She will be given opportunities to reflect on why emotional relationships are so important and what they mean to her.

She may be attracted to professions that involve service to others such as teaching or medicine and may have lessons to learn about balancing the needs of others versus her own needs.

Karma of Seven

The Seven Karma is a need to overcome a fear or resistance to spiritual matters, to grow spiritually and to learn to be alone without being lonely.

While there is a fear or resistance to spiritual matters, there may also be a fascination because these subjects are familiar in some way. The exposure usually will be repeated in many forms and at many different times of the life before a genuine belief system will be seen to take form.

Past life readers believe that a person with a Seven Karma has suffered some form of loss or pain because of religious or spiritual beliefs.

The Seven Karma also involves learning to enjoy one's own company and to delve into the joys of the mind and of the imagination. Parents can encourage this process by encouraging the child to develop hobbies that call for spending time alone. It may take a while to find one that intrigues the child enough to overcome the resistance to solitary activity, but it is far easier to learn to be alone through enjoyable activities than to suddenly encounter a period of isolation in teen or adult years and not know how to deal with it.

The Seven Karma also can be associated with drugs or alcohol. The Seven represents a search for inner peace and those who do not find it through spiritual growth often find a very poor replacement in drugs or alcohol.

Major Influences

There are four major time periods in a person's life. These time periods will each have a predominant emphasis and a particular challenge. The first time period lasts approximately thirty years and it is important for parents to understand because it does cover all of the childhood years.

Pinnacle of Two

The Two for the First Pinnacle is a sensitive period with an emphasis on cooperation, group activity, sharing and learning to relate well with others.

The lessons involved involve developing those skills needed for successful, well-balanced relationships with others. This child should not feel pressured to take leadership roles but should feel encouraged instead to enjoy her role as participant in a variety of social situations.

Challenge of Five

The Challenge for Maya's early years is a Five. The Five represents curiosity, freedom, communication and personal expression.

The Reluctant Astrologer

In the Challenge position, the Five indicates a need for Maya to explore her world and indulge her creative and curious nature without hopelessly scattering her energy. In a child's chart, a Challenge of Five may indicate a hyperactive nature or, at the far end of the scale, a child who is frightened of any sort of change.
